Valley Health to Host Southside Summer Safety Day

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. – Saturday, June 27, Valley Health – Southside is hosting Summer Safety Day from 1 – 4 p.m. at the A.D. Lewis Community Center Field in Huntington.

Families will have an opportunity to join in a fun-filled afternoon of activities centered on child safety. Participants will learn about bicycle and car seat safety from car seat specialists. There will be an obstacle course provided by the YMCA’s Kids in Motion, inflatables, face painting and more. Every child will receive a prize while supplies last.

Health Insurance Marketplace assisters will be on site answer questions about signing up for health insurance. Valley Health staff will also be available to talk about their services, immunizations, nutrition and the importance of physical activity.

“The staff at Valley Health – Southside wanted to host an event that promotes the importance of safety, physical activity, good nutrition and vaccinations,” Nicole Akers, clinical coordinator at Valley Health, explained.

The event is free to attend. A.D. Lewis Community Center Field is located at 1450 A.D. Lewis Avenue in Huntington.

For more information about the event, call Valley Health – Southside at (304) 529-0645 or visit www.valleyhealth.org.
