Britni Ross, Psychologist, Joins Valley Health

HUNTINGTON, W.VA. – Britni Ross, a psychologist, recently joined Valley Health’s team of behavioral health providers.

This summer Ross received her doctorate in clinical psychology from Marshall University. She previously completed a pre-doctoral internship at Cherokee Health Systems in Knoxville, Tenn., where she co-facilitated programs for those with a variety of behavioral health diagnoses including those with alcohol and substance use disorders. She also coordinated care for patients with their primary care providers, psychiatrists, nurses, and community health coordinators – a service she has a special interest in. Other treatment areas of interest include addiction, chronic disease management and aging.

Ross is currently accepting new adult and adolescent patients at Valley Health – East Huntington located at 3377 US Route 60. To schedule an appointment, call 304-399-3310. Walk-ins are also welcome. She will also be providing care at Valley Health – Highlawn located at 2585 3rd Avenue in Huntington after it reopens in September. Highlawn’s phone number will be 304.781.5138.

Ross is a supervised psychologist under Rebecca Denning and David Wolfe, psychologists at Valley Health.

A Putnam County native, Ross enjoys reading, traveling, cooking and weightlifting.
