VALLEY HEALTH WELCOMES AMY MUNCY, CFNP, TO STEPPTOWN AND FORT GAY HEALTH CENTERS

FORT GAY, W.Va. – Valley Health is pleased to announce the addition of Amy Muncy, Certified Family Nurse Practitioner, to its team of talented medical providers.

Muncy, who began working at Valley Health’s Steeptown health center Nov. 2, will offer primary care on weekdays and evenings to patients of all ages with an emphasis on services for women and children. Additionally, she will provide care to patients with minor injuries or illnesses at Valley Health – Fort Gay’s urgent care.

“Muncy’s experience and devotion to serving rural communities make her an important asset to our health centers,” Steve Shattls, chief executive officer of Valley Health, said. “We are very pleased to welcome her to the Valley Health team.”

As a West Virginia native and family nurse practitioner with 11 years of experience in the nursing field, Muncy will work side by side with physicians, providing a wide range of services, including preventive care and treatment to men, women and children. For the past 4 years, she has worked with patients in crisis at a local hospital emergency department. Muncy received her master’s degree in nursing from West Virginia University and her bachelor’s degree in nursing from West Virginia University Institute of Technology.

Valley Health – Steeptown is located at #3 Adena Dr. in Kermit. For more information about Valley Health – Steeptown, or to make an appointment, please call 304-393-4090. For urgent care services, Valley Health – Fort Gay is located at 3329 Bridge St. in Fort Gay. For more information about Valley Health – Fort Gay, please call 304-648-5544.
