APRIL BAISDEN, MD, TO JOIN VALLEY HEALTH
New physician to offer internal medicine and psychiatric services

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. – Valley Health is pleased to announce the addition of April Baisden, MD, to its team of providers, where she will provide internal medicine to adults and psychiatry to patients of all ages.

Dr. Baisden graduated from the Marshall University Joan C. Edwards School of Medicine and completed her residency at the West Virginia University School of Medicine Charleston Division, specializing in internal medicine and psychiatry.

Dr. Baisden will begin working July 1 at Valley Health – Highlawn, where she will provide preventive care and treatment for health conditions. She is especially interested in geriatric care as well as combining treatment for mentally and physically ill patients.

By integrating internal medicine and psychiatry, Dr. Baisden intends to provide care for all her patients' needs, whether for body or mind. She also plans to emphasize the importance of the relationship patients build with their doctor, with hope that they will take ownership in their own health.

“We are very excited to welcome Dr. Baisden to Valley Health and are confident that she will be a valuable asset to the community,” Steve Shattls, chief executive officer of Valley Health, said. “With her combined expertise in psychiatry and internal medicine, she will offer a unique and important perspective to her patients.”

Dr. Baisden joins a strong team of physicians at the Valley Health – Highlawn location, including pediatrician, Shannon Smith Maxey, MD, and OB/GYN providers, Rafael Molina, MD, and Aaron Scaife, MD.

Valley Health – Highlawn is located at 2585 Third Ave. in Huntington. For more information about Dr. Baisden or to make an appointment, please call 304-781-5138.
