Valley Health – Hurricane to Host 3rd Annual Free Summer Safety Day

HURRICANE, W.Va. – Saturday, May 27, everyone is invited to join Valley Health – Hurricane for its 3rd Annual Free Summer Safety Day from 10 a.m. – 12 p.m.

Families will have the chance to join in a fun-filled morning of activities centered on child safety. Participants can experience the local fire department’s escape simulator and hear from the local police department. The Dawg will also be there along with the Putnam Princesses, Elsa and Anna. Other highlights include bounce house, basketball, giveaways and refreshments. Every child will receive a prize while supplies last.

Valley Health staff will be available to talk about their services, sun and water safety, and the importance of physical activity.

“Our goal this year and every year is to reach and educate as many families as we can to help prevent the many accidents and injuries that are prone to happen over the summer as well as have fun with the kids,” Dr. Jordan Nash, pediatrician at Valley Health – Hurricane, said.

The event is free to attend and will take place at 3729 Teays Valley Road in Hurricane. For more information, call Valley Health – Hurricane at (304) 760-6040 or visit www.valleyhealth.org.
