VALLEY HEALTH WELCOMES NEW PEDIATRICIAN, MISTY STROW, MD, TO SOUTHSIDE PRACTICE

Huntington, W.Va. – Valley Health is pleased to announce that fellowship-trained physician, Misty Strow, MD, has joined the staff of its Southside location as pediatrician.

Dr. Strow, who is now accepting new patients, has more than five years of experience as an emergency care physician at one of the region's largest hospitals and now welcomes the opportunity at Valley Health to follow her true passion of providing primary care to children.

"Meeting the healthcare needs of children is what originally motivated me to enter the medical field," noted Strow. "I feel particularly committed toward building open and collaborative relationships with parents with the ultimate goal of influencing the health and well-being of each patient I serve."

A native West Virginian, Strow completed medical school and residency in general pediatrics at the Joan C. Edwards Marshall University School of Medicine. She also completed a fellowship at the West Virginia University School of Medicine in emergency care.

With three young children of her own, Strow is well-equipped to interact with young patients while relating to and addressing the concerns of parents. She joins four other providers at Valley Health – Southside that include fellow pediatric providers, Amanda Workman, MD, and Jennifer Wellman, NP, and OB/GYN physicians, Ellie Hood, MD, and Herbert Myers, DO.

Valley Health – Southside is located at 723 Ninth Ave. in Huntington. For more information, or to make an appointment with Dr. Strow, please call 304-529-0645.
